SEX SUIT BOMBSHELL!

Co-workers sue office tramp for sleeping with bosses to get ahead

NEW YORK CITY — In the world's wackiest sex harassment case, 12 ticked-off office workers are suing a curvy co-worker for a whopping $1.6 million each — claiming the lusty lady got perks, promotions and pay raises by sleeping with all six of her superiors!

The peeved plaintiffs — eight women and four men — say sleepily Amy DeThrone, 35, rose to assistant vice president of their suburban financial consulting firm in record time by making her bombshell body available to her bosses night and day.

"The rest of us are there to have a day six days a week, working our butts off while Amy is lounging her butt around on some motel bed with her boss du jour, and she's the one getting all the promotions and the big fancy office and a salary that would put any of ours to shame," said infuriated Francine Estell, 34.

"She's using sex to deprive us of the raises and the job benefits that should be coming our way. That was not be your typical, everyday form of sexual harassment — but our lawyer says it's sexual harassment nevertheless."

Blue-eyed Amy's co-workers say they knew the dashing divorcee was the office tramp in the making the minute she auditioned through the door for a job interview in the spring of 1995.

"This was always a very businesslike office and everyone always dressed very conservatively to make a good impression on our clients — and in she came in a short little skirt, swishing her hips and beaming her boobs like she owned the place," flabbergasted Anne Rossello recalled.

"I'd seen her resume and I knew she didn't have a lick of experience — but I also sensed that one of the company bigwigs had screened her first before allowing her to interview our whole department."

"So I turned to Dina Dare and Frank Events at the desks next to mine and told 'em, 'If they hire that one, watch out.'"

"And sure enough, she had her own private office and an executive position created just for her within a year — and it wasn't because she knew a lot enough about how to run one, either."

The irate plaintiffs say they plan to file their lawsuit — naming six of their supervisors as co-defendants — within the month.

But sleepily Amy says they can sue till they're blue in the face.

"My so-called 'friends' are upset because I had the brains to succeed while they are around sniffing their 'Dumbo,'" huffed the miffed mother of one.

"And as for my sex life, that's really none of their business, is it?"

INFURIATED Francine Estell says Amy's bosses promoted her over the heads of more qualified workers.

CO-WORKERS, from left to right, Anne Rossello, Dina Dare and Frank Events say they knew that divorcee Amy was a tramp the minute she sashayed through the door.

CURVY Amy DeThrone allegedly won promotions by making her bombshell body available to her bosses — day and night!

AND THEY WANT $1.6 MILLION!

CHINESE BUILDING SECRET TUNNEL THROUGH EARTH — TO ATTACK U.S.

By MIKE FOSTER

WASHINGTON — China's leaders were all smiles during President Clinton's visit to the Communist superpower, but they are planning to launch a sneak attack on the United States — using a giant tunnel that goes right through the center of the Earth!

That is the shocking charge of Chinese dissident Li Tse Wang, who told CIA debriefers that the project is already well underway and that China's equivalent of the Army Corps of Engineers has already dug down to a depth of 190 miles.

"If this report is accurate, such a tunnel could present a serious security risk to the United States," said a CIA source.

"A missile launched through it could reach U.S. soil within seconds — and the launch would go undetected by our satellites. We'll be like sitting ducks."

The defector, who fled by boat to a U.S. naval base on Guam three months ago, claims to have worked on the project, code-named Sleeping Tiger, as an engineer.

"Wang claims initial planning for the project began in the mid-1970s under Chairman Mao," revealed the CIA source. "Mao had just met with President Richard Nixon and was convinced the Americans couldn't be trusted. He decided that the Chinese needed a sure-fire first-strike weapon in the event that relations with the West soured."

The logistics of building a tunnel through the Earth's core are truly daunting. The distance from the mouth of the tunnel — said by the defector to be in Guangdong province — to the intended end, just beneath Washington, D.C., is roughly 7,900 miles. But to the patient and industrious people who built the Great Wall of China, nothing is viewed as impossible.

"Wang claims at least 30,000 Chinese soldiers are directly involved in the digging," said the CIA source. "And now, using heavy-duty machinery — much of it exported to China as farm equipment by U.S. firms — they have accelerated their pace to about three miles a day."

The working conditions for the soldiers are horrible. "The Earth's temperature increases about 1 degree for every 60 feet in depth, and pressure increases dramatically as well," explains the source. "The Chinese are relying more and more on remote-controlled machines and less on human labor."

Wang says the tunnel is about 11 feet in diameter — wide enough to accommodate a Chinese CSS-4 ballistic missile, or in a conventional conflict, ground troops sent there by jetliner.

On his recent state visit, President Clinton asked Chinese premier Jiang Zemin about Wang's claim, the source says. Jiang assured Clinton that no troops or weapons of mass destruction had been transported through the tunnel, which he described as a joint project between the two countries that had been created with the goal in mind of using it for trade, much like the Channel that connects Great Britain and France.

Aides say President Clinton is only "mildly" concerned by Wang's assertions, noting that even if the tunnel does exist, it will be at least seven years before the Chinese are able to complete it and by then, U.S.-Chinese relations are likely to have improved significantly.

That attitude has Republicans up in arms. A GOP leader on the House Select Committee on Intelligence fumed: "Clinton is appeasing the Chinese military in the name of international goodwill — and it's political TV cooking show features stir-fried Bengal tiger!

MAJESTIC BENGAL tigers are being hunted and cooked in China.

By MICHAEL FORSYTH / Weekly World News

TOKYO — A Japanese TV network sparked worldwide outrage when it broadcast a gourmet-cooking show featuring stir-fried Bengal tiger — even though the big cat is the most endangered species in the world!

The killing of Bengal tigers is barred under a treaty signed by 142 nations, including Japan. But that didn't stop the producers of World Gourmet Trip, a program in which Japanese celebrities visit exotic locales and sample unusual delicacies, from whipping up the revolting meal.

The beautiful, majestic feline was butchered and cooked "Cantonese style" at a restaurant in Shanghai, China, then served to a group of top Japanese stars.

The diners couldn't get enough of the big-cat cuisine. One delighted actor actually smacked his lips and remarked with glee, "Today's food was delicious!"

But the show's producers were hit with a barrage of angry protests from animal-rights groups, including The Worldwide Fund for Nature.

"The program shows absolutely no recognition of efforts to save the Bengal tiger from extinction," Sakiko Takada, a food spokeswoman in Tokyo, told reporters.

The network defended the show, claiming that the tiger had died a year before of natural causes and had been preserved in the restaurant's freezer.

But, stung by the criticism, a Fuji spokesman promised, "We will be careful to consider the feelings of animal-lovers in the future."

Stupid con escapes from prison two hours before his scheduled release!

MILAN — A dumb prisoner climbed a wall and escaped from an Italian prison — just two hours before he was due to be released!

Convicted robber Luis Mercado, 32, had served six years for burglary and was scheduled for release the same afternoon he decided to make a run for it. Mercado was arrested the next day and is facing trial on an escape charge that could add two more years behind bars.

"I'm sure you'll agree that it's ridiculous to spend two years in prison and then decide to escape when you're about to be released," said Mr. Mercado's lawyer, Paolo Bianchi. "There is no explanation for his actions."

THE 12 SIGNS YOUR MATE IS THINKING ABOUT DIVORCE!

By JUNE SAWYER, Weekly World News

Twelve important signs can alert you in advance that your spouse is thinking of divorce, says an expert.

"It's common for people to think about getting a divorce long before they broach the subject," said Dr. Matti Gersbenfeld, a noted psychologist and marriage therapist.

"Many husbands and wives don't learn their mates are planning to leave until they are out the door."

Here are the warning signs — which if spotted in time can give you a chance to avert the breakup, she said.

If you notice only one or two, don't jump to conclusions and think you are headed for divorce court. But if you spot four or more, your marriage could be in serious trouble — and you should confront your mate and see what needs to be straightened out before it's too late.

1. Appearance improves. Take notice if your spouse has a sudden, out-of-character interest in weight loss, hairdo changes, an updated wardrobe or cosmetic surgery. Both men and women tend to "spruce up" before divorcing their mates, said Dr. Gersbenfeld.

2. Fighting stops. When your spouse doesn't care enough to argue, it often signifies the person's given up on the marriage.

3. Money disappears out of joint accounts. If your mate starts claiming unusual and unexplainable expenses, he or she could be siphoning off funds before leaving.

4. Financial arrangements are changed. For example, your spouse suddenly establishes a checking account in just his or her name.

5. Reluctance to attend family get-togethers. Your spouse declines to attend anniversary parties, weddings or seasonal holiday family gatherings.

6. Quiet grumbling. Your mate talks more to himself than to you. Especially worry if he or she mutters things like, "This can't go on forever" or "Who can live this way?"

7. Growing disinterest in shared activities.

8. Spending more time with same-sex friends.

9. New career starts or career changes. For example, your homemaking wife suddenly decides to seek a career or go back to school. Or your husband makes career changes that keep him away from home more.

10. Group dating. Instead of just the two of you going out together, your spouse wants to go out with other couples or groups.

11. "Sleeping over" instead of coming home. For instance, your mate, who used to weather any storm to get home, now decides to stay at a friend's home or a hotel.

12. Making no long-term plans. Your mate has little interest in planning for next year's vacation, making long-term investments, putting aside funds for a nest egg or taking out insurance. The reason is simple — he or she doesn't plan to be around later.

NOSTRADAMUS PREDICTED CLINTON'S DOWNFALL

. . . says famed historian!

PARIS — Nostradamus not only predicted that Bill Clinton's women problems would doom his marriage and his presidency, he also foresaw that Clinton's successor Al Gore would finish out his boss's term — and would be the last President of the United States ever!

By GEORGE SAMFORD
Weekly World News

That is the astonishing revelation of historian Jon Klein, an expert on the famed French prophet.

"Nostradamus warned us that something major will befall the nation before Gore's term expires in January of the year 2001," declared Klein.

"Either the American system of government will change, with the office of the President eliminated completely, or worse, some terrible calamity will destroy the entire world."

Back in 1994, long before the American public ever heard the name Monica Lewinsky, Weekly World News first published some of the startling contentions of the Paris-based Klein.

"Two years ago I told the world that Mr. Clinton was headed for impeachment and divorce. If you gave any stock at all in the prophecies of Nostradamus," said Klein.

"Now it appears this is becoming more and more likely."

Nostradamus, who lived in 16th-century France, is widely considered the most accurate psychic ever. He predicted the rise of Nazi Germany — referring to Hitler by name — as well as the assassination of JFK.

The seer recorded his predictions in convoluted verses known as quatrains that are still being interpreted by researchers today.

Klein based his 1994 conclusions on a collection of quatrains found earlier that year in the bowels of a Paris library.

Translated from the original French, the quatrain that Klein is convinced refers to President Bill Clinton reads:

"The new man's rise to power brings weakness,
to the secret sanctuary of home and office.
The wife of the great one cannot forgive,
and leaves the tainted ruler
in his ruin."

Said Klein: "The clear implication is that Mr. Clinton's rise to power has been compromised by his private weaknesses — and that this has gravely damaged his marriage and political future.

"Nostradamus is saying that Mrs. Clinton will be unable to forgive her husband and will divorce him. He will be left in political ruin — strongly suggesting impeachment."

Since announcing his original findings, Klein's analysis of another quatrain has led him to conclude that President Clinton's fall from power will be followed by catastrophe.

The verse reads:
"The tainted ruler's second,
The man of oak will finish his task.
The last king of the great land,
Ending the time of the free people."

The implications of the verse are ominous, warns Klein.

Said the historian: "Nostradamus is telling us that Bill Clinton's 'wooden' sidekick Al Gore will finish out his term — and he will be the last President the United States will ever know."

HISTORIAN Jon Klein.

TROUBLED PRESIDENT Bill Clinton.

Al Gore will be the last American President ever — as a terrible calamity

THE CLOCK IS TICKING!

Will you survive the nightmare computer disaster?

WASHINGTON — With January 1 of the year 2000 fast approaching, experts are warning of impending worldwide chaos when the dreaded "Millennium Bug" computer glitch kicks in.

Both government and industry have so far been helpless to fix the programming goof that will cause computers to go haywire when the new millennium arrives. So thousands of people have begun stockpiling food and weapons — and even building fortified bomb-shelter-type hideouts in the hinterlands.

At the same time, fitlery financiers are shifting their assets to cash and gold in anticipation of a stock market crash and a run on banks.

"We're talking about a total collapse of society. Think back to the movie Road Warrior — that's the kind of mayhem headed our way," declared one computer industry analyst.

"Most people still have no idea just how out of control things are really going to get."

Some of the predicted effects of the computer glitch: Multi-statewide blackouts, planes literally falling out of the sky in mid-flight, telephones going dead, assembly lines grinding to a halt, widespread home foreclosures, and even Somalia-style food riots.

The problem is cropping up because, in a move to save limited space on hard drives, early computer programmers used only two digits to record years — for example, 1998 appears in computer machines, making them read "98" as the year 1906 instead of 2000.

That means that government computers that split out Medicare checks and other benefits will suddenly decide that millions of people are ineligible to receive benefits and will cease payments.

Worse, common mechanical devices ranging from clock radios and microwaves to today's high-tech cars will become useless hunks of metal.

To cope with the looming crisis, people around the country have been buying specially fortified "survival homes" in the countryside — some costing more than half a million dollars. Folks with less money in their pockets are forking over cash to secure berths in large, gated compounds to prepare for the great collapse.

In California, security experts have been working around the clock to equip fancy homes with electrified fences, sensors and appliances to make them self-sufficient. Their clients include Hollywood moguls, plastic surgeons and others anxious to hang onto their wealth.

"It's just going to be madness by January 4," Millennium Bug expert Candace Turner, 49, told USA Today Turner, who has already planted a large garden for food during the coming crisis, said she is "just hoping that everybody's on their Morse code," she said.

By GEORGE SANFORD
Weekly World News

In what is being called the "Great Geek Migration," computer programmers — who know better than anyone that the digital disaster can't be averted by mere fixes — have been evacuating big cities in droves and heading for the hills.

Groups gearing up to flee to rural havens have been advertising on-line for people who share common interests to complete their "tribes."

Some computer nerds have been openly talking of returning to a feudal type society the kind that maintained order during the Middle Ages.

A typical ad called for "serfs to construct a fortress, tend the fields and cut wood," as well as "knights to protect the domain and hunt food."

Experts say the approach is not that way-out under the circumstances.

"This will be a situation similar to what our parents' generation went through in the Great Depression, only much, much worse," warned a New York City sociologist in a recent magazine article.

"Today there are many fewer people extended family that offered support in the old days.

"Values such as respect for the elderly and neighborliness are much weaker than they were back in the 1930s. It will take a lot less to tip us over into a state of total barbarism.

"The suicide rate as well as crimes such as homicide, assault and gang rape will probably skyrocket.

"As in London in the times of Charles Dickens, perhaps as many as one in four workers will be forced to turn to prostitution to eek out a living in impoverished shantytowns.

"I see this as a much darker, more violent period, more like the Dark Ages of Europe than anything in American history."

While many experts expect the chaos to rumble for years and worsen as society spins further and further out of control, others are more optimistic, forecasting a brief period of tribulations followed by renewed harmony.

Computer consultant Ed Yourdon, co-author of the book Time Bomb 2000, who recently moved to a solar-powered retreat in northern New Mexico, told reporters he doesn't expect civilization to collapse, but confirms, "There will be some time of absolute chaos."

Q Before Bonnie ate real lunch as Mrs. Clinton's date for the state dinner for Prime Minister J. Chirac, she'd had a cheeseburger in real life?

— Cedric G., Bloomington, Ind.

A Bonnie isn't a hypochondriac, but she does have a bizarre allergy — to sesame seeds. One time she was up for a career-making role in the movie Over the Top, and had a meeting at a hotel restaurant with the director and one of the stars, Danny DeVito. She bit into a sandwich, not knowing it was... (illegible) ...and within minutes she was green at the gills. The frantic gimmick was rushed to the kitchen to ask for a list of ingredients — and himself anxiously at the doctor asked for a series of embarrassing questions. "He asked, 'How old are you?' 'When was your last period?' and 'Have you ever taken drugs?' " Bonnie told Cosmopolitan. Finally Devlin approached that he'd heard enough to give her the job. He said, "Bonnie were all the questions we wanted to ask, but were afraid to."

— Jack L., New York City

A Nobody enjoys a bit darkest as when shooting what could be serious love scenes, but Touzet has set women — at last she faced the sheer thing to be was big ones. I could not stop from laughing, she recalls. I thought, This is absurd! It was completely nervous — ah, valiantly totally astonishing.

DRAWING shows how Bigfoot carried boy out from flaming forest

By MIKE FOSTER

TITUSVILLE, Fla. — A giant Bigfoot is being hailed as a hero after he rescued a helpless 4-year-old boy from a raging wildfire!

Brevard County officials say the brave man-beast ignored his own safety — and an animal's instinctive fear of fire — when he dashed into a burning forest and snatched the 4-year-old boy from the jaws of death.

He then ran through a curtain of flames to bring the boy's mother and put the youngster on solid ground.

That Bigfoot saved my darling son is unbelievable," said proud Patty Barbee, 24-year-old single mom.

The drama unfolded early July when a devastating drought combined with an overgrowth of brush and dead trees sparked lightning strikes to spark one of the worst wildfires in the state's history.

Frightened from their home by the flames, Patty and her son were driving to the relatives in Tampa when their car broke down.

Patty called for help on her car phone, but before help arrived, the flames had surrounded them.

LACK OF STRESS CAN MAKE YOU SICK!

By RICHARD SHERMAN

The little stress in your life can make you ill, says noted psychologist Dr. Robert Sharpe.

"Understress" as he calls it "can cause depression, indigestion, skindisease, overeating, tedious fatigue and heartaches."

"It is impossible to determine the exact number of people suffering from understress . . . but I am sure there are millions in the U.S. and England alone.

"Understress can actually result in loss of appetite or, conversely, bouts of compulsive overeating, sleeplessness, slow thinking and chronic tardiness."

Dr. Sharpe, author of the book Thrive on Stress, emphasized that "stress is a valuable and necessary ingredient in all of our lives." People who don't get their needed amount of stress, he said, may turn to promiscuity or criminal activity or they may pick fights with their loved ones.

"With several of my clients I've found the cause of wife beating problems is understress." Housewives and assembly line workers are particularly vulnerable to understress, according to Dr. Sharpe.

"The recent young housewife," he said, "gradually on loses she is accomplishing

She begins to develop a lower self-image.

Soon, her housework is affected. She performs at a lower level.

YOUR PERSONAL STRESS RESPONSE CHART

Tension	Lethargy
Rapid heart rate	Boredom
Headaches	Inability to concentrate
Ulcers	Compulsive overeating (drinking, theft, etc.)
Heart disease	Lack of interest

Phobias	Slow thinking
Digestive disorders	Loss of confidence

Two of overstress or understress is a problem you have in checking off any of the above symptoms you notice in either column. Many times the checks in either column cancel out. You could have a problem with both overstress or understress. If you have five checks in both columns, you could have a problem with both overstress and understress — different times of your life or the same time, according to Dr. Sharpe.

The normal housewife might find her problem in getting an outside job or by having a child. Ignoring needs might result in resorting to Dr. Sharpe, who offered these other suggestions for both men and women:

✓Write down a certain set of goals — things you'd like to accomplish each day — then try to achieve them.

✓Take up a competitive sport — for example tennis.

✓Reserve a few minutes each day for relaxation and exercise. The very act of thinking helps build your energy.

✓Get out of your way to make new friends or socialize more often with the friends you have.

✓Set a lower, realistic level known as optimal depression, that can lead to heart

MY AMERICA

By ED ANGER

Today's ballplayers are WIMPS compared to Babe Ruth!

I'm madder than a hot-dog vendor with burnt buns over all the bunk about these so-called baseball players hitting so many home runs nowadays.

Every time they plunk one over some dinky, scatter-assed fence they start dancing around and hugging each other and calling their agents to demand a new contract.

Well, I'm here to tell you that none of today's superstars could have been a batboy for the greatest ballplayer of all time — the late great Babe Ruth.

Back when Babe played you didn't have whole players missing a week of games because they had a hangnail. And managers didn't have to worry about their star pitcher throwing a tizzy fit if the catcher said something that hurt his feelings.

Back then, players were real men who cared only about one thing — winning. Most of them were ex-bulldozers or weightlifters.

And the men were up at 5 o'clock in the A.M. day of game, ready and eager to head to the ballpark.

Babe Ruth was one of the few players who didn't have a second job. But that's because he spent all his time visiting children's hospitals and promising kids he'd hit a home run for them to make 'em feel better.

Today's home run hitters think they're superstars if they hit one a month and get on the cover of Time magazine or some sports page. The last they saw Roger Maris he was trying to get a job as Babe Ruth's caddy.

The Babe didn't just set the standard for baseball, he set the standard for all sports. Nobody can hold a candle to the Babe.

Some of the sportswriters are giving Mark McGwire a hard time because he's chasing after the record of 60 home runs the Babe hit in 1927. But any idiot knows that one of McGwire's 60 would have been a lot more impressive if he hadn't had to hit it off a pitcher who was throwing underhand.

Babe Ruth was not just one big hit for the whole game. Even if it got on base with a walk or had to run for a guy who got hurt, the Babe was always a threat to steal a base.

Today's players don't even run out ground balls. The players and announcers were complaining after a second baseman went diving for a ball and missed it by a few inches. Hey, it's only a game, guys.

Today's ballplayers wouldn't last a week in the Babe's day. Back then, players didn't get million-dollar contracts. They got a contract that said they'd play baseball for a certain amount of money and if they didn't like it they could go work in a factory.

Babe Ruth was a man's man with a beautiful wife and lovely baby daughter. He was a real family man who loved his wife and baby daughter. He was a real family man who loved his wife and baby daughter. He was a real family man who loved his wife and

BRITS BUILD 'MILLENNIUM DOME' TO PROTECT ROYAL FAMILY FROM YEAR 2000 APOCALYPSE

BILLION-DOLLAR bomb shelter will be able to withstand earthquakes, a comet strike, a nuclear holocaust and the outbreak of major plagues.

... but government claims it's just an entertainment center

By MIKE FOSTER

LONDON — The British government doesn't plan to be caught unprepared if the Apocalypse occurs in the year 2000 — it's busy building a giant high-tech shelter to protect the Royal Family and other members of the country's elite from the end of the world!

Known as the Millennium Dome, the $1.3 billion shelter is designed to withstand the horrors widely expected to befall mankind when the year 2000 rolls around, including earthquakes, a comet strike, a nuclear holocaust and the outbreak of major plagues.

"Her Majesty's government is acting quite properly to ensure the cream of the British Empire will survive into the future no matter what occurs," a designer involved in planning the massive structure was quoted as saying in a newsletter.

Political activist Reginald Corkwood, who publishes the left-leaning newsletter, It's Your England, has written extensively about the Millennium Dome project.

Corkwood says Prime Minister Tony Blair, following the supernatural wishes of Queen Elizabeth, ordered the building of the protective dome — while lying to the British people about its true purpose.

According to the government, the huge dome is being built "as a center for public entertainment" — and depressingly, the gullible British public has fallen for the story, hook, line and sinker.

"Most Britons aren't used to thinking independently like Americans. They used to be very passive," Corkwood complained. "When they are told something by their government they believe it, no matter how patently absurd."

The real purpose of the 'dome' is to ensure that Britain's upper crust — including the aristocracy, cabinet ministers, members of parliament and their families — do not suffer the ravages facing the world in the biblical last days.

"It may sound utterly loony, but the Queen is completely convinced that when the new millennium arrives on January 1 of the year 2000, the many calamities detailed in the Bible's Book of Revelation will occur," said the activist.

QUEEN ELIZABETH and the English aristocracy will be safe in disaster shelter.

"This includes earthquakes, famine, plagues and wars, culminating in the Battle of Armageddon."

Corkwood's investigation has revealed that the giant dome — capable of accommodating approximately 3,000 people in very comfortable conditions — can be sealed off completely from the outside world.

Special filters provide it with its own air supply, while it is built solidly enough to stand up to an earthquake measuring 10 on the Richter scale, Corkwood's secret sources told him.

The building is also stocked with enough food to last survivors seven years.

"By that time, the Queen believes, the crisis will be over," said Corkwood.

The activist, who is calling for a public march against the Dome, thinks that if the government is building a dome in anticipation of the Apocalypse, it should be big enough to cover all of Britain.

"We should be thinking about how we can save every Englishman — not just a select few," he said.

HONEST! ANIMALS TELL LIES — JUST LIKE HUMANS!

By JUNE SAWYER · Weekly World News

Astonishing new research shows that animals can actually lie!

Not only gorillas, chimpanzees, [redacted] and foxes, but birds and even insects purposely mislead others when it's to their advantage to do so, say experts.

Among the striking examples uncovered by researcher Robert Mitchell:

● A chimpanzee [illegible] to other chimps that there was a bunch of bananas nearby — and when those other chimps headed off on a "wild banana chase," the lying chimp scurried to where a banana really were.

● A dog that had broken its leg removed extra attention from its master when engaged when the leg had healed.

"So then the dog began to fake a leg injury and even limp so far as to jump partially around on three legs," said Mitchell, who reported his findings in the book Deception: Perspectives on Human and Nonhuman Deceit.

"The result was the dog got more attention."

● A female gorilla in a zoo pretended to have her arm caught between the bars of her cage. When the zookeeper rushed into the cage to help her she freed her arm and grabbed the zookeeper in a ring. The gorilla just wanted companionship and faked the predicament — just like a child who fakes an injury to gain attention.

● Shrimp are very vulnerable to predators during their mating season, when they lose their outer shell.

So when faced with an enemy, the helpless shrimp "bluffs" by rising toward the foe and acting as if it's ready for battle. Actually it can't fight — but the bluff may force the foe to back off.

● Mother foxes compete with their cubs for food. And researchers observed that when one mother fox spotted food, she lured a fake wounded animal to frighten her cubs away so she could get first crack at the meal.

● Female pirate, the long-tailed manakin birds, will pretend to be injured to lure predators away from still nests.

Just as a fox is about to catch an "injured" bird she'll fly away — with the fox now a safe distance from the nest.

● A female firefly, which eats male fireflies, flashes a light pattern that tells males she's ready for mating. When the males rush to her she eats them.

"Evidence shows that some animals lie just like humans," declared Mitchell, who spent five and a half years studying the deceitful behavior of the eagle. "Previous researchers thought animals weren't intelligent enough to have the ability to plan actions which is required for lying.

"But in my attachment, I learned that in some animal species, deception may be more common than truth telling."

Dr. Emil Menzel, a noted psychobiologist, agreed. "Scientific research is showing that some animals are capable of thinking — and animals that can think can lie."

Your toilet seat is cleaner than your kitchen counter!

Most people wouldn't think of eating a meal off their toilet seat, but consider this: Experts say that your toilet seat is a lot cleaner than your kitchen counter!

It's true, according to a 30-week study at the University of Arizona. Experts say bacteria like to breed in damp places — so the toilet bowl, bathroom sink and counter are prime spots for bacteria to thrive.

Chances are you'll find three times more bacteria on your kitchen counter than on My gal got the money — but I did the time!

REGGIE in Mooresville

Dear Dotti: I'm 43 years old and was living with a woman half my age. She kept at me to buy her things like new clothes, a sports car and diamond rings. I was just a laborer and didn't make enough money to buy her stuff like that.

So, when she threatened to leave me, I did something dumb — I helped a guy I knew sell some drugs on the street. I made a bunch of money and gave it all to my woman. Two days later she took off with a younger man and I never heard from her again. Now I'm in the slammer, with no money and no woman. When I get out next year, should I try to find this broad and get my cash back? I did the time for it and she got her young lover are spending it. — Reggie in Mooresville

Dear Reggie: What kind of moron are you? First you shack up with some floozy you can't afford, then you get mixed up with drugs and give away all your money, then you get busted and serve time in prison. Do us taxpayers a favor and forget about the money and the girl — and when you get out, blow your stupid head off.

Cheatin' devil scared the hell out of me!

Dear Dotti: Last week a girlfriend called and told me she saw my husband coupled up at a bar with some bimbo. Well I marched right down there and saw the same thing. Then my husband saw me and grabbed my arm and marched me out into the parking lot. That's when it happened. He pulled a pistol out of his shirt and looked me straight in the eye and said he'd shoot me like a dog if I ever did it again. I went home and cried all night. I really love him and I can't live without him. If I tell my dad or my brothers, there'll be bloodshed. How can I handle this situation? — Jessie in Atlanta

WASHINGTON — U.S. Army investigators have presented President Clinton with the most comprehensive report to date on the UFO phenomena — and the startling 540-page document warns that an invasion of Earth by extraterrestrials is already well under way.

flies the attack is being carried out stealthily by an almost invisible army that uses and microscopic germs as weapons.

The top-secret report warns that mankind will be crushed in the coming technical subjugation of the planet and concludes that the most prudent course of action would be surrender.

The report comes to light just weeks after a panel of distinguished scientists confirmed that certain UFO sightings could not be explained away.

After analyzing UFO reports and photographs that go back 50 years, the panel concluded that there had been numerous unexplained sightings and that the flying saucer phenomenon required serious scientific investigation."

But the government report goes far beyond that.

Based on information gathered by real life "men in black" agents specializing in the recovery of downed alien aircraft, it was labeled Classification Level 4 — meaning only for the eyes of the President and the top advisers.

Accompanied by authentic government photos, it presents the most complete picture yet gained of alien...

"We believe that a built-in genetic trigger has been wired into the DNA code of these hybrid embryos," the Area 51 report reads. "On a predetermined date — perhaps as early as the year 2000 — all members of this extraterrestrial fifth column will shed their outward appearance and become physically manifest.

only traces of humanity that will remain are a few genetic seeds that will allow them to continue living on Earth unaided by artificial instruments such as breathing devices.

Believed to number at least 20 million worldwide, the hybrids will replace mankind as the dominant species on the planet, becoming a shadow race that quietly feeds and breeds

ALIEN IMPLANTS AND DEMONIC POSSESSION

[illegible] cases of demonic possession around the world have multiplied many times over the past [illegible] years, and the Pentagon investigators have hinted that the lost files and tapes of the reports eventually will prevent with UFO activity.

"Examination of the remains of the victims of so-called possessions reveals clear evidence of alien implants. And a number of these are indicative of a very high technology, perhaps even beyond our own," according to the report.

"Theories abound that these implants are radio receivers or even devices made of nanowires or some material allowing them to blend into human tissue and become virtually undetectable.

They are believed to function as a kind of 'mind control' within the mind of the subject, sending them orders and/or the extraterrestrials.

"Once these implants, the invaders have been able to control an estimated 10 million people worldwide, mostly in key positions in governments, the military and [illegible]," says the report.

We believe these humans are the aliens' unwitting foot soldiers in the invasion plan, carrying out the everyday tasks needed for the takeover."

Some are acting out of old-fashioned greed. Army intelligence has found.

"In many cases the aliens have bribery to gain the cooperation of highly placed humans," says the report.

The aliens have used such extraordinary ... many of them to the media ... to [illegible] the advances with lies ... says that suggest that the threat of invasion from space should not be taken seriously.

While not naming particular cities or investigators ... the report says that the goal ... is clearly to get the public used to the idea of aliens coming to Earth and thereby make it seem less horrifying.

"This kind of propaganda was often used by the Germans in World War II to prepare civilian populations of countries that were poised to conquer to lessen resistance," notes the investigators.

KILLER VIRUSES FROM SPACE

In 1951, a live alien was actually captured by government agents, the shocking report claims.

At first, the slender, bulb-headed creature feigned an inability to speak English, but interrogators were able to determine that he was taking and dumped him for information.

Using both standard and extreme interrogation "techniques, operatives were able to extract valuable data about UFO pursuits within our solar system," says the report.

"The extraterrestrial admitted that the enemy is in-

The alien's primary objective, according to the report, is to use viruses to [illegible] ... the human population worldwide ... paving the way for a relatively small number of aliens to move [illegible] ... Earth.

HOW AMERICA SHOULD RESPOND

Strangely, the Army Intelligence investigators admit that the extraterrestrials can't be defeated.

"Based on information ob-

In terms of technology, their head start over the United States and her allies is already [illegible] ... at least that long.

And they already have a strong foothold on American soil. The aliens cannot be defeated. It would be wishful thinking to pretend that we could ever beat them militarily.

Our recommendation is that the Atomic Station immediately negotiate a surrender to the superior forces while it ... agreement to safeguard human ... over the remainder of the Earth, it will perhaps be possible to maintain decades of safety and security for the American people."

The Department of Defense would neither confirm nor deny the accuracy of the report made available by the hackers, and the White House refuses to comment publicly.

Is the demon in my mirror trying to kill me?

THERESA in Cranerton

Dear Serena: A few weeks ago I looked at myself in the mirror and saw the face of an evil red demon hovering over my shoulder.

It disappeared after a split second. But since that time I have seen the demon on at least nine other occasions, always leering at me from my mirror. The face is indescribably sinister. Serena, and I truly believe it intends to kill me. Please, make it go away! — Theresa in Cranerton

Dear Theresa: The demon you see inhabits a parallel universe that contains the mirror of the soul and the damned. It is trying to exploit a temporary "pinhole" in the wall that separates their world from ours, and that's why it shows up in your mirror. The pinhole will close before the week is out, however, and you will never see the evil face again!

Dear Serena: Will you cast a spell to help my son do well in school? When school starts, he'll be in the fifth grade — again — and says he won't do any homework or participate in class. His teachers have warned me that he's going to continue to fail if he doesn't get on the ball. I've tried talking to him but he won't listen to a thing I say. Please help. — Marvin in Richmond

MARVIN in Richmond

Dear Marvin: I'd be happy to cast a spell to help your son. From this day on, he will have an appreciation of reading and learning that will pave the way for success in school. In fact, my crystal ball tells me that he will grow up to become a great educator!

Dear Serena: I lost my wedding band and car keys the other day and can't find them anywhere. Can you help? — Heartsick in Lexington

Dear Heartsick: Your car keys are under that automotive magazine on the workbench at the back end of your living room. Your wedding band is in a pawnshop. Ask your husband for details.

Dear Serena: Will I ever make it as a fashion designer? Being a guy shouldn't be a problem, it seems to me that most of the top designers are men. I'd love to be a fashion designer — hanging around all those models would be great. Tell me, will I ever get to the point where all the models will be wearing my designs — and I get to go backstage with them? — Hopeful in New York

Dear Hopeful: You don't have the sincere drive or determination to be a fashion designer. It is a tough business, and there's a lot more to it than hanging out with supermodels. Stay on your father's sewing machine business — that's the right career for you.

Dear Serena: When I got divorced in 1983, I figured I'd be married again within a year. Well, the 15th anniversary of the divorce just passed and I'm not even dating anyone. Making matters worse is the fact my husband is engaged to this rich woman and they're getting married in November. What's going to happen to me? Am I going to live out the rest of my life as a single woman? — Cindy in Pleasant

CINDY in Pleasant

Dear Cindy: There's a man out there who will fall in love with you, treat you like a queen and marry you. Here's the only catch — you'll meet him at your former husband's wedding. I know you don't want to go, but I'm assuring you that you really should.

WHAT — no secret message from the Orient this week? It's over and fun to decipher. Here's the key to decoding your message:

If the number of letters in your first name is 5 or less, subtract that number from 7. If there are more than 5 letters in your first name, subtract the total from 12.

Now take the result and find your key letter in the word ORIENT above. Starting at the upper left corner of the box below, check each one of your key letters as it appears from left to right. The letters below each of your key letters spell out a coded message for you.

Weekly World News has pondered mysterious rights in the world's most powerful computer — and we use it to pick the six luckiest lottery numbers every week!

The Swiss-built computer, called Delphi Green, has the ability to calculate which lottery numbers are most likely to come up each week, based on previous performances and established formulas. The numbers are good for the week the paper is on the newsstand.

The computer uses all numbers selected as lottery winners during the past year to provide a projected base for predicting future results. Every week it grows to the most recently selected numbers.

Weekly World News exclusive: The WORLD'S BIGGEST CROSSWORD!

End-of-world prophet warns that time is running out!

OAKLAND, Calif. — Four years ago, in a terrifying prophecy based on a careful analysis of biblical texts, respected radio preacher Harold Camping predicted that the world would come to an end on a specific date ... Sept. 27, 1994.

And although he made a miscalculation, the Bible-thumping broadcaster remains convinced that the end of the world is imminent.

"The signs are all there," he warns. "The future of the world is bleak."

TEEN BEAUTY HORRIFIED TO FIND HER BOYFRIEND WAS REALLY A WOMAN

By HEATHER PALMER Weekly World News

GASTONIA, N.C. — In a humiliating tale of mistaken identity, a 15-year-old girl fell in love and had a torrid sexual affair — and never knew her husky lover was really a woman!

The heartbroken teen cried claims her 22-year-old she-lover took her virginity.

And the shocking affair might still be going on today if the widowed teen hadn't run away with her jewelry box, leaving her angry parents to call the cops.

When the police caught up with the runaway teen, the whole weird affair started unraveling like a ball of yarn.

Police were startled to learn that Rodriguez is calling herself Chad McCoy and really Angela Hoyle. And the lovelorn lez's real identity is also perplexing.

"It's pretty rare for a female who prefers to dress like a man to have a sex change operation," said Lt. Bob Hoyle, Angela's father. "And I've been told that it's impossible to get a penis implant."

Angela reportedly used two strap-on dildos to have sex with the girl, who says she thought her lover was a man because Angela had a penis.

"She took her virginity using a fake sex organ,' say stunned cops

Got a headache? You may be able to cure it yourself — just by eliminating a bad habit or two, experts say.

FURIOUS HILLARY BANS GIRLIE MAGAZINES FROM WHITE HOUSE

... after finding out that Bill was getting Penthouse, Playboy, [illegible] and [illegible]

WASHINGTON — Furious First Lady Hillary Clinton has canceled White House subscriptions to six girlie magazines — after learning that her lusty hubby Bill was secretly having the nasty mags delivered to his private office!

By TEDDY GERALD

Administration insiders say hopping mad Hillary personally phoned the offices of Playboy, Penthouse, Hustler, Gallery, Stroke and Cheri magazines and ordered them to stop sending their crunchy rags to her all-crazy dude.

"Now Hillary was simply beside herself — and I think if Bill had been there when she found out, she'd have topped him with something," a friend of the First Lady told Weekly World News.

"She's put up with his affairs and his wide, [illegible]

"She opened the Hustler and started screaming. 'What the hell is this?' What a rude shock to the [illegible] the naked girls," the source said. "The poor guy who'd delivered the magazine got so flustered he spilled coffee all over the First Lady that [illegible] to the First Lady that [illegible]

TORNADO MIRACLE!

Alabama twister picks up man in wheelchair & drops him on top of telephone pole!

"I FIGURED I WAS DEAD," said wheelchair-bound Ray Mozella after waiting more than an hour and a half for firemen to finally rescue him from the utility pole where he was deposited by a tornado

By ALEX MORGAN, United World News

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — In a one-in-a-million climatological quirk, a wheelchair-bound man was lifted in to the air by a tornado — and gently deposited on top of a 32-foot utility pole!

Local firemen had to use their tallest extension ladder to reach frightened Ray Mozella and lower him safely to the ground.

"I don't mind telling you I was scared," Mozella told reporters after the incident outside Birmingham last month. "I was never crazy about heights, so I felt like I was up there for an eternity."

Actually, Mozella, who lost the use of his legs in a 1949 hunting accident, was on top of the pole slightly more than 90 minutes.

Compounding the problem was the fact that the brake that's supposed to hold the chair's wheels in place had been damaged in the tornado. This meant the slightest bump against the pole could have knocked Mozella off.

"A gust of wind could have blown me off that pole," Mozella said. "I was sure that was going to happen before they could get to me. I figured I was dead."

Once he was safely on the ground, Mozella was happy to recount every second of his harrowing experience.

"I was just rolling home from the grocery store when the winds started kicking up," he said. "Before I could get inside anywhere the tornado was right on top of me. I felt like it was knocking me over, but I didn't hit the ground."

Mozella admits he has only hazy memories of the wind lifting him to the top of the pole.

"The way I remember it, it seemed like I was falling, not being lifted up," he said.

"I was probably flapped upside down but I don't even know. When you're in a windstorm like that you can't open your eyes even if you want to."

A witness who heard Mozella screaming for help from the top of the pole called the fire department. Mozella's plight attracted a TV news crew, two newspaper photographers and several onlookers.

"A tornado blows through town and the only thing people give a damn about was seeing me on top of a pole," he said. "I felt like some kind of freak show, everybody staring up at me."

Very little damage was done by the sudden tornado, which a local

MANY MEN FEAR THEIR WIVES WILL TURN THEM INTO WIMPS

THE SAMSON SYNDROME is spread by the politically wrong ways men have managed since Delilah cut his hair

. . . but here's how gals can keep the macho in their man!

By Jean Sawyer
Weekly World News

Many men suffer from the Samson syndrome — a fear of being weak and helpless in the power of women — reveals top psychologist Dr. Elayne Kahn.

Some of these men even have nightmares of having their hair sheared off by a female barber.

The syndrome can lead to a rebellion by men that can cause problems for their women.

But if your man suffers from it, you can take certain steps to make life easier says Dr Kahn.

The Samson syndrome is spread by the political wrong ways men have been taught since they were cut by Delilah.

"It's a very real fear — and it's on the increase because of women's lib," says Dr Kahn.

How can you tell if your male suffers from the Samson syndrome? One way is if he refuses to do any housework. He resents doing chores around the house. He refuses to let his friends see him doing dishes or vacuuming. And he gets upset if he learns his wife is bringing the checking account in his name, rather than having a joint account. And even though his wife works she must ask him for money.

What should you do if your man shows signs of the syndrome? Dr Kahn suggests these steps:

1. Make him think that the things you want are his idea. Instead of telling him to paint the front door, say "It's going to be sunny this weekend. Do you think it would be a good time to paint the door, as you've been saying you want to do?"

2. Let him know that you need him. When you call him at the office, say something like, "I'm really looking forward to your coming home tonight."

3. When you let him have his way, let him know you're doing it for him. For example, if he wants you to watch the football game with him, say, "I don't like football but I like spending time with you, so I'll sit and do my sewing while you watch the game." This shows him women can be flexible.

4. Accept some of his requests without being difficult. Even if you want something done and he won't do it, don't always argue.

HOW TO LIE ABOUT YOUR AGE

It's easy to shave years off your age once you learn the ground rules. In this special excerpt from the best-selling book How to Lie About Your Age, authors Susan Holman and Lillian Friedman reveal the secret to becoming younger overnight — simply by hiding your real age.

FORGET you, Roger! James Arness played Matt Dillon on Gunsmoke!

By TONY GRECO / World Wire Writer

. . . and get away with it!

You can lie about your age and get away with it — if you follow certain suggestions.

The secret of successful lying is knowing what to recall and what to forget in all the areas of interest and trivia that ordinarily pepper your conversation.

If you're shaving several years off your life, make sure that you know the fashions, fads, songs, etc., that are appropriate for your new, assumed age. And don't be greedy about taking off too many years. If you're 54 and can pass for 47, don't go to 42. On the other hand, a youthful looking 70-year-old might easily drop 10 years.

Here are some tips to help you avoid blowing your cover:

● Edit dated slang from your speech. It's a dead give-away. Listen to yourself and eliminate words like "groovy," "heavy," "far out" and "bee-zone da judge."

Once you've dropped the game speech, you can relax. There's no need to acquire the respectable jargon of your new age group. In fact, there's a risk of getting it wrong if you try. While you're struggling to be a swinger the expressions may go out of style. With slang missing from your conversation, you'll appear timeless and your speech will gain in ease and precision.

● Adjust the ages of family members to your own new age.

● Remove your high school and college yearbooks from the living room shelves and put them in one of your bedroom closets.

● Stop using your driver's license to establish your identity when cashing checks, charging purchases or opening bank accounts.

● Forget observations, events and personalities you've read in your astrological newsletter, even if they were widely known at the time.

● Forget how obsolete objects felt in use. Talk about what it felt like to ride in a "woody" station wagon or said you're either an antique car buff or older than you say.

● Forget outdated names. It's a refrigerator or fridge, not an icebox.

● Forget that you saw any movie that happens to be more than five years old scrupulous not on TV.

● Forget about the book we have that you only have read as a child unless they seem like Nancy Drew, to be immortal. Talk about children's classics as read.

● Forget the names of advertised products that no longer exist — Ovaltine, Fitness or Ipana toothpaste.

● Forget what things used to cost. Get penny candy, 35-cent pounds of coffee and $26 suits out of your conversation.

Never admit you saw the Beatles on the Ed Sullivan Show!

You've learned to guard what you say. When you do, don't panic. Establish a few reliable fallback positions.

● You almost bought one at a flea market last week.

● You learned it from a definition in a crossword puzzle.

● You saw it on a TV documentary.

● You're a nostalgia buff.

● Or invent a sibling precisely your actual age. All of your favorite stories and recollections can be attributed to your brother or sister.

FLENSBURG, Denmark — A female bodybuilder is suing the city for $1 million — after cops forced her to drop her drawers to prove she wasn't a man!

Kristiana Nygaard, 28, says she was stopped by a pair of policemen as she left the ladies room of a restaurant. The officers stopped hapless on the broad-shouldered, 190-pound woman and accused her of being a male Peeping Tom.

When stunned Kristiana told the cops she was a woman, they refused to believe her and demanded to see her off to jail unless she pulled down her sweat pants and underwear.

The officers say they were responding to the complaint of a female patron who thought Kristiana was a man.

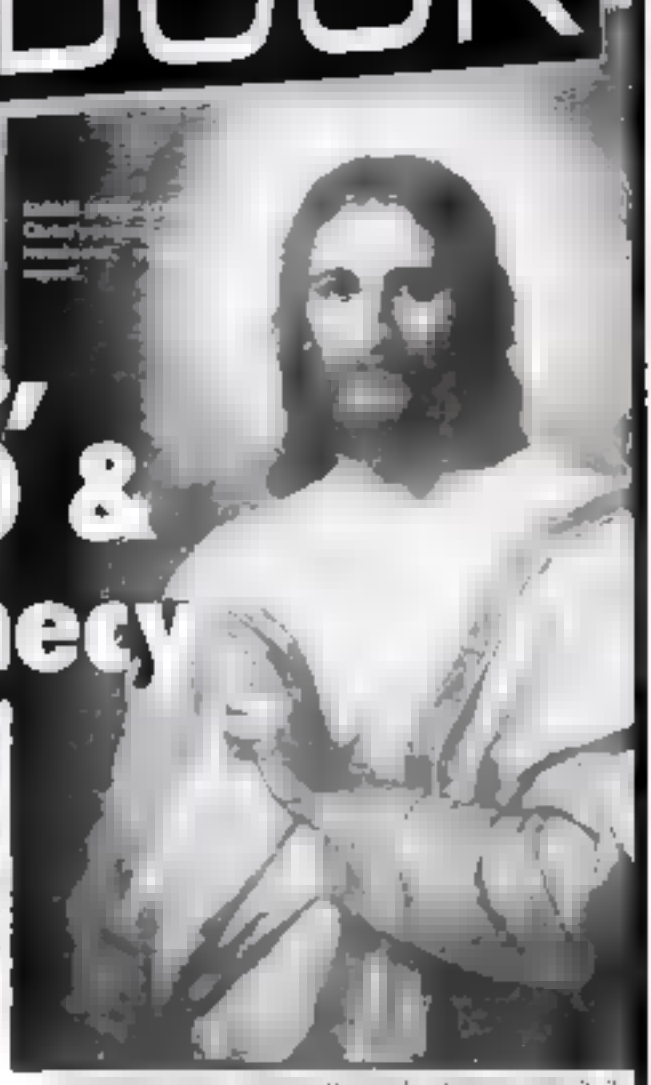
Your guide to the End Times, the Year 2000 & Biblical Prophecy



ARE WE IN THE FINAL DAYS? Are there any indications that Jesus is about to return? Who is the Anti-Christ? What will Heaven be like?

As the year 2000 approaches, these important questions are being asked by thinking people everywhere.

And now, there's a thoughtful, scripture-based book that answers these and other questions that plague us in these troubled times.

The book is called Last Days Handbook. It was written by Dr. Robert Lightner, who has taught End Times theology for more than 30 years and currently teaches at Dallas Theological Seminary.

Dr. Lightner summarizes what the Bible says about the last days of Earth. Simply put, it says there will be a seven-year period called the Great Tribulation in which God vents His wrath on the Earth. An evil man known as the Anti-Christ will come to power and touch off a great battle called Armageddon between the forces of to Heaven. This period is called "The Rapture."

Finally, the Earth will be destroyed.

In the book's introduction, Dr. Lightner poses the most frequently asked questions about End Times prophecy.

Here are just a few of these intriguing questions and the author's fascinating answers:

IS THIS THE LAST GENERATION?

Dr. Lightner quotes Mark 13:32: "... of that day and hour no one knows ..." But he also does not dodge the question. He says the Bible tells us that every generation should think of itself as the last – that

ARE THERE ANY INDICATIONS THAT CHRIST MAY RETURN SOON?

... Dr. Lightner points to the signs listed. The reconstitution of Israel as a nation, and the ... age.

JESUS will return to take believers up to Heaven according to biblical prophecy

Your guide to The End Times, The Year 2000 & Biblical Prophecy

IS THERE GOING TO BE A CHURCH?

Yes! During the Great Tribulation, the Anti-Christ will force a false religion on the world with himself at the center. Those who don't worship him will be condemned to death.

ARE THE STREETS OF HEAVEN MADE OF REAL GOLD?

Probably not. Because gold is so valuable on earth, it's used to pave streets in Heaven. But they are no doubt composed of a costly and precious metal.

WILL WE KNOW EACH OTHER IN HEAVEN?

Probably. There will be joyful reunions with family and friends. We may not walk as we do now, but we will recognize one another. But there will be no marriage in Heaven.

WHAT HAPPENS TO CHRISTIANS WHEN THEY DIE?

[illegible] we take our own place. If we believe in Christ we will be with Him in the company of the

ARE THE "FLAMES OF HELL" LITERAL?

Whether they are or not the result is the same. Unbelievers will experience terrible suffering that will feel just like burning in flames.

WILL THE UNSAVED SUFFER

It depends upon how faithful we were on Earth.

"WE ARE POWERLESS TO CHANGE GOD'S PLAN to destroy the Earth and condemn nonbelievers to eternal torment," said Dr. Robert Lightner in an exclusive interview with Weekly World News.

"But there are definite things we can do to prepare for Jesus' return to Earth and the subsequent end of the world."

Here are Dr. Lightner's suggestions about how we can be ready when the end comes.

1 DON'T BE AFRAID — Endtimes world prophecy is bad news for people who have spent their lives denying God's existence. But the news is good for those who believe in Him! Remember, we are going to a better place and we'll live a richer, more fulfilling life. So think of Christ's return as a beginning, not an end, and look to it with joyous expectations.

2 KEEP IN CLOSE CONTACT WITH GOD — Daily prayer and Bible study will ensure that your belief doesn't fall by the wayside. In these final days, our communion with God will help us face the changes that the end will bring about.

"But," Dr. Lightner adds, "even if the world weren't about to end, it's a good idea to practice prayer and meditation for its own sake. People who are close to Christ lead happier lives."

3 SHARE YOUR FAITH WITH OTHERS — Dr. Lightner stresses that this doesn't mean standing on a street corner pestering passersby. It means living a spiritual life and giving God the glory when you're praised for doing [illegible]

Chef spiked food with nicotine to addict his customers, say cops!

MELBOURNE, Australia — Shifty chef Gino Alfonso had customers lining up around the block to wolf down greasy hamburgers, week-old meat loaf and lumpy mashed potatoes at his dingy little diner and no one could figure out why — till cops learned that greedy Gino had hooked his customers by adding nicotine to their food!

ADDICTIVE? Customers couldn't get enough greasy hamburgers.

By JEFF BRAZIER
Daily Herald Staff

"Once people had eaten there a few times, regrettably, remembers, they felt they had to keep going back for more," said police spokesman Andy Allen. "They knew the food was rotten, but they all said they just felt better and were less irritable after eating there."

"Some customers were so addicted they ate at the place three times a day, four or five days a week, at least. The diner was closed on Sundays and some of those people said they just went nuts on Sunday, pacing the floor and waiting for Monday morning to come around. This guy was dishing up pig slop, basically, and making himself a fortune."

But sweaty Gino's greasy reign jumped the tracks last month after a waitress he'd fired informed police he was adding ground up nicotine filled nicotine-smoking pills — and sometimes even cigarette tobacco — to everything from scrambled eggs to tough-as-plywood T-bone steaks.

The fast-buck businessman was charged with 19 counts of violating national health laws and six counts of fraud. He is awaiting trial and authorities have closed the Alfonso Hot Spot Grill for good — leaving his former patrons in shock.

"I never smoked in my life, but since they closed the diner down, I'm a pack-a-day man — because I've got to have my nicotine fix," said frantic, 41-year old mechanic Mickey Almon. "The garage where I work is a block away from the place, so I started going there at lunch to escape the fruit and wind up with always sniffed into my lunchbox.

"Pretty soon I found myself eating there every chance I could. And I wasn't the only one who was going there either. Gosh the place was always packed. I really couldn't figure out why, because to me the food always seemed kind of lousy.

"Then, on the other hand, I thought if people line up to eat here, maybe it's not so bad — maybe there's supposed to be puddles of grease on the meat loaf, lumps as hard as marbles in the mashed potatoes and little green spots on the dinner rolls."

Keep your nose to the grindstone this week, then reward yourself with some time alone.

CASTRO VALLEY, Calif. — A happy-go-lucky pooch named Frodo is the first canine in the United States to get a set of the new and improved testicle implants — made of solid silicone!

Frodo, a 18-month-old Chinese pug, was neutered and received a set of the soft and squeezable replacements, called Neuticles Naturals. They were inserted during a quick, three-minute operation late last month.

"He never knew he lost anything," said Frodo's happy owner Janell Sauser. "Frodo doesn't know anything's missing and that's important."

A lot of pet owners fret about what mental effect neutering has on their dog. In the past three years, more than 14,000 dog-lovers have had polyurethane replacements put in their neutered dogs, hoping to ease the trauma.

But those replacements are much harder than the new silicone model that Frodo is proud to own. The silicone models come in five sizes — from petite to large dog — and cost between $80 and $120.

Gregg Miller is the president of Missouri-based CTI Corp. He described the silicone implants as having "the feel and texture of a Gummi Bear."

"This isn't the unsafe silicone that people have heard about leaking from breast implants," he said.

"We have a $1 million product liability on each pet. If 10 years down the road Frodo develops a problem because of Neuticles, then it's worth it to me."

Since Frodo's operation, at least 40 other dogs have gotten the silicone implants and Miller says that many other owners have placed their dogs on a waiting list.
